

Are you interested in saving money on your water bill?

Graham County Utilities (GCU) knows that most families and businesses are looking for ways to trim back on necessary budget costs. We believe we can provide you with the information and options that may lower your water bill with GCU plus there is no cost or obligation to our water customers.

Water Counts, a local water conservation education program, has made available to all GCU residential and commercial customers a FREE water volume usage analysis. This analysis will provide a review of water flow rates, detection of system leaks, proper equipment function and may be performed both indoors and outdoors as determined by the owner. Some low-income households may qualify to have repairs completed by the Water Counts program.

If you are interested in having an analysis performed or learning more about water conservation, please contact the following individual for more information:

Cynthia McMillan
Water Counts Coordinator

To make an appointment for your free usage analysis you will need your GCU customer number found on your utility bill. By contacting this outside agency and providing your customer number to Water Counts, you agree to share your water usage history with Water Counts so that a detailed water analysis can be performed. Please note that no financial information will be released to the water analysis team or the public and only summarized usage information may be used for reporting purposes.

If you have questions regarding this program please contact Than Ashby 928-485-8657 or Kirk Gray 928-485-8665.
